CAN'T STOP

"I started music when I was 4 with my family in Illinois. Everyone on my mom's and dad's side is related to music in some way. It started as just trying to learn notes on the French horn, but then it evolved into professional work and becoming a better musician."

WON'T STOP

"Mentally, the expectations to be on tour are hard. I've had to miss out on a lot, like my brother's birthday, because I'm doing a professional marching band tour all summer. I don't get to do what a normal teenager does. There are points when I hit a wall, but I keep going."

"No one else is doing the tour for you, you have to do it for yourself. With all that, I try to stay humble, but I also want to recognize what I did and what I can do. The other people I've met have helped a lot. It's like a self-working support group without knowing. Those are my musical brothers and sisters."
