

BLAST TO THE PAST

What is a trend you want to bring back from your high school days?

"I remember there was another kind of [trend] demonstrating or signaling your awareness for a cause, like for a long time in the 90s, everyone [wore] a different ribbon. There's like a ribbon for Columbine [High School Massacre], a ribbon for AIDS awareness, or ribbon for like LGBTQ awareness. There's a kind of feeling of solidarity when there's that element of life, the awareness or wearing something that is signifying your particular cause."

"We just had a lot of fun, like goofy teenager antics that were meant to just be fun. I remember grasshoppers being set out on the steps or eggings that happened and stink bombs and like just little pranks that are good natured and yet, I miss some of that kind of fun being a teenager. So I would like to bring that back. I think back in the day, we felt the pressure to do well, but it wasn't like this overarching thing. It wasn't like, this is how many classes you had to take. We were able to be teenagers, which was nice."

What are the top 5 places around the world staff want to visit?

"I really never started traveling [until] I met my wife. I would say probably the past ten years is when I've done the most traveling in my life."

ROBERT HOFFMAN

"I feel like traveling opens up your mind more than anything else you can do. [When I travel] I just want to experience all of it. Good bad whatever. My motto of life: always have a trip to look forward to in your life."

POOYA HAJJARIAN

"I want to go to an ashram that offers Ayurvedic ways of living, where you eat really simple foods. You meditate, go to a silent retreat for a day or two."
